Acceptance into Marshfield Clinic School of Radiography is based on a selective admissions process. Applicants can earn points from selected criteria to increase their position in this process. These criteria are based on areas that have been found to be indicators for higher success rates. Not all criteria are mandatory for application, but if completed, can better an applicant's position, and therefore increase the chance of being selected. Please refer to the Application Requirements for indication of which criteria are considered mandatory for application. The Radiography Program bases scoring points on the national norms and program attrition data. Marshfield Clinic School of Radiography is continuously evaluating admissions procedures and reserves the right to make changes as necessary.
